

To whom it may concern;

I have worked with Adam Porter just under a decade now, and the reason we've had such a long and profitable business relationship is because of two words, quality and professionalism.

Having worked with countless writers over the years, I feel safe in pointing out that not all writers are created equally. While it's not unusual to find someone trying to bill themselves as a writer, the reality is that many are not skilled at the craft. Even worse, most have no idea what it takes to write online to generate traffic for your site.

This is why Adam has always stood out amongst the crowd. When it comes to tackling an assignment I can't afford to have any mistakes on, and have little time to train someone to do it right, my first choice is always Mr. Porter. He consistently produces quality content quickly, that are perfect for our SEO and social media efforts. Not only would I hire him again, I'd chain him to his desk!
